

This represents a dreadful overreach of government into the private lives all Australians. To tie personal identification to the free access to information in any way is a shocking assault on free-speech and the right to privacy.

Such access schemes are both illiberal and recklessly carefree with the private information of individuals, as demonstrated in the abandonment across almost every single liberal democracy that has considered their use.