

Ever googled yourself?

Remember, our online profiles have become a digital resume — anyone can google your name or find info from your social media accounts, including potential employers, universities and others.

